CONFIDENTIAL — Prepared for Sales Discussion Only

Executive Summary

Pacific Cascade Legal is one of the largest family law firms in Oregon and Washington, with 8 offices, 10+ attorneys, 340+ Google reviews, and 130 years of combined legal experience. Despite this strong operational foundation, our research reveals a significant gap in media and news coverage compared to their top competitors.

On average, Pacific Cascade Legal's top competitors have 3–5x more news and media presence. This gap represents a major missed opportunity for credibility building, search visibility, and new client acquisition.

KEY FINDING

Pacific Cascade Legal has only 3–5 press mentions in the past 2 years. Their largest competitor, Gevurtz Menashe, has approximately 15–25+ media mentions in the same period. This is a fixable problem—and exactly what NewsAnchored was built to solve.

What the Competition Is Doing Right

Gevurtz Menashe (30 attorneys) — Co-founder Albert Menashe served as Oregon State Bar President in 2007 and has been featured in Oregon Bar publications, The Daily Journal of Commerce, and Chambers & Partners. The firm routinely issues press releases for attorney milestones and has been cited as an expert source in family law stories for decades. Their institutional reputation is the gold standard in this market.

SKH / Stahancyk, Kent & Hook (18 attorneys) — Founder Jody Stahancyk has her own Wikipedia page and was profiled in The Business Journals, Super Lawyers, and Willamette Week. SKH was featured prominently in a 2024 Willamette Week story about Oregon's historic decision to license paralegals—nine of the first ten licensees worked at SKH. This is the kind of organic, high-authority media coverage that builds a firm's brand for years.

Gearing, Rackner & McGrath (9 attorneys) — Actively uses Law Firm Newswire for press distribution. Multiple partners were featured on news outlets like Fox2Now for Super Lawyers recognition in 2023. Even with a smaller team than Pacific Cascade Legal, GRM generates 2–3x more media coverage through a consistent press release strategy.

Goldberg Jones (multi-state) — As a firm with offices in Seattle, Portland, and San Diego, they run a professional PR operation using PRNewswire for every attorney hire and firm milestone. Their "Divorce for Men" niche also generates organic media interest. Multiple press releases have been distributed through major wire services since 2016.

The Visibility Gap: What This Means for Pacific Cascade Legal

Pacific Cascade Legal has the substance to be the dominant firm in this market. They have 8 offices, 10+ attorneys, 340+ Google reviews, 130 years of combined experience, a podcast (Modern Family Matters), regular webinars, and a strong community presence. However, nearly all of this brand equity is self-published content on their own channels.

Here's what they're missing compared to competitors:

- Third-party media credibility: Competitors like Gevurtz Menashe and SKH are quoted as expert sources in news stories, published in legal trade journals, and profiled in feature articles. Pacific Cascade Legal has almost zero earned media presence outside of self-distributed PR Newswire releases.
- Google News visibility: When potential clients search for "Portland family law attorney," competitors with news coverage appear in Google's News tab and Knowledge Panels. Pacific Cascade Legal does not, despite being one of the largest firms in the region.
- AI search presence: AI tools like ChatGPT, Google AI Overviews, and Perplexity increasingly pull from news and media publications to recommend law firms. Firms with more news coverage are more likely to be surfaced. Pacific Cascade Legal is significantly underrepresented in these AI-powered recommendation engines.
- Authority & trust signals: Third-party media placements serve as social proof. When a potential client is comparing Pacific Cascade Legal vs. Gevurtz Menashe, one firm shows up in the news and the other doesn't. That disparity directly impacts conversion rates.
- Backlink & SEO advantage: Every media placement generates high-authority backlinks to the firm's website. Competitors with more media coverage have a structural SEO advantage that compounds over time.
